Suit to restore Fourth's glitter

DUBLIN — Two fireworks manufacturing companies have taken Valley Community Services District to court asking VCSD to demonstrate why the companies should not be permitted to sell fireworks within the district.

Pyrotronics Corporation and Ace Fireworks Company, two California corporations, are challenging VCSD's ruling that the sale of so-called safe and sane fireworks can not be permitted within the district even though both the Alameda County Ordinance Code and the California Health and Safety Code allow it.

The sale of fireworks is prohibited in Livermore and Pleasanton.

Last month the Alameda County Board of Supervisors ruled that safe and sane fireworks may be sold in Dublin and other unincorporated areas of the county.

Applications by Pyrotronics and Ace Fireworks to sell fireworks on Regional Street in Dublin from June 28 to July 6 were denied by VCSD Fire Chief Philip Phillips on June 2. Phillips said that given the severe fire danger caused by the exceptionally dry year, fireworks would pose a fire hazard.

He based his ruling on the 1973 Uniform Fire Code adopted by VCSD.

On June 11, VCSD was served with a summons to appear in court on Monday to show cause why the county and state codes do not pre-empt the VCSD ruling.

The district's legal counsel was able to secure an extension of the case until next Tuesday.

Until then, VCSD has been temporarily restrained from refusing to receive applications for the sale of fireworks. Chief Phillips has been instructed to process the applications until a final ruling has been handed down.

Attorneys for Pyrotronics and Ace Fireworks contend that the county and state codes take precedence over the district's ruling.

They argue that the firms will suffer undeterminable financial loss if the sale permits are not granted.

Because this is the Bicentennial year, attorneys said the companies have taken increased orders in anticipation of the great consumer demand.

Tuesday night, the VCSD Board of Directors upheld the action by Fire Chief Phillips. Phillips told the board that the district is 35 fires ahead of last year, noting that six fires in the last two weeks were caused by fireworks.

Sparklers and other fireworks that do not move are considered safe and sane. But Phillips said that all such devices emit fire and become very hot.

"We're already in enough fire trouble," he said. "We don't need this to compound the problem "

A majority of the VCSD board, Lila Euler dissenting, agreed with the action taken by Phillips.

VCSD President Ron Hyde said he that despite the Bicentennial year, the interests of fire safety should prevail.

The board noted that no other valley community permits the sale of any fireworks. The action might not prohibit the use of fireworks, Hyde said, but it would prevent accessibility in the valley.

VCSD must appear in court again on Tuesday to show cause why its stand should be upheld. The district's legal counsel thinks that because of the time restraints, the Alameda Superior Court judge will rule from the bench.

The sale and use of firecrackers, cherry bombs, roman candles, bottle rockets and other moving fireworks are banned throughout the state.

Trustees eye budget cuts in Pleasanton

PLEASANTON —The Pleasanton Joint School District began its $231,397 paring exercise last night, following a 45 minute trip through budget land led by Doug Rose, assistant superintendent for business services.

Pleasanton's study budget for 1976-77 now amounts to $6,658,769, or $231,000 plus more than the district can now afford.

The reductions in programs, personnel and or services will come as a result of a turn down by district voters of a revenue limit increase measure June 8.

At last count, the measure had failed by a mere 14 votes, according to the county's election division.

Supt. Bruce Newlin presented a list of prospective cuts headed by reduction of 5½ equivalent fulltime teachers, which would not raise class size as enrollment is projected to decline.

The adminsitration is also proposing to eliminate most bus service for sixth through eighth graders, including Vintage Hills, Amador Estates and Del Prado West, causing 250 more walkers.

Towel service, two library aides, a K-5 instrumental music program, outdoor education and monies for custodial uniforms were also proposed to be eliminated.

Board members took no action on the cuts proposed by Newlin and his staff.

Linda Robertson, public relations assistant for the Alameda County Fair Association, casts plaintive glance at dozens of trophies earmarked for winners in this year's Fair, scheduled to run from June 27 through July 11. Trophy she holds in her left hand is one of those designated for diaper derby winner. County Fair Association Board of Directors were to meet at 10 this morning to determine if Fair will open as planned or be cancelled, because of county employees' pickets and strike.

Injunction signed, but will it stop fair picketing?

PLEASANTON— Presiding Superior Court Judge Robert Barber yesterday signed an injunction that would ban pickets from gates at the Alameda County Fairgrounds but the action was not expected to clear pickets by this morning, when Fair directors are to meet to consider cancellation of the decades-old County Fair.

Barber had issued the order earlier in the week after County Fair Association attorney John Cantwell had gone into court in an effort to have the pickets ousted so contractors could complete preparations for the Fair, slated to start a week from Sunday. However, when attorneys for the Service Employees International Union (SEIU) objected, saying they hadn't been apprised of the court session, Barber withdrew the injunction.

Pickets continued their daily vigil at entrances to the Fair through yesterday and were expected back in force this morning.

Fair directors, chaired by president Tom Kitayama of Union City, were to huddle with Cantwell this morning at 10. The original action to consider cancellation was made by director DeWitt Wilson of Pleasanton at a board meeting June 8.

Secretary - manager Lee Hall, who has been involved in a continual round of strategy sessions with Fair Association counsel, said the public would be informed of the directors' decision via a press conference at noon.

Meanwhile, prospective exhibitors and grounds personnel went ahead with preparations for the Fair, annually one of the largest in the western United States.

Hall noted earlier in the week that between $350,000 and $400,000 had already been committed in preparations for the Fair. He claimed that cancellation of the Fair could result in an estimated $2.5 million loss in revenues.

Among the events in doubt as of now are the Maid of Alameda County Pageant, slated for June 27, and the various livestock auctions. Fair personnel have indicated the pageant probably could be held as scheduled even if the remainder of the Fair were cancelled.

Two other major events, not tied to the Fair exhibitions, the race meet and the parade, will definetly be held. The race card starts Monday, June 28. The parade, sponsored by the Pleasanton Bicentennial Festival Committee, starts at 12 noon on the 27th.

Cooper hits threat to County Fair

Board of Supervisors chairman Fred Cooper, in a prepared statement to the press yesterday, said Service Employees International Union pickets "have made innocent victims of thousands of 4-H children and Fair-going families by threatening to ruin the Alameda County Fair."

Last year's attendance was 433,741.

"With pickets posted at the Pleasanton grounds, crucial construction jobs are idled and delivery of goods is blockaded," Cooper stated.

A decision was to be made this morning by County Fair Association directors meeting in executive session at the Fairgrounds in Pleasanton.

The Fair is scheduled to run from Sunday, June 27 through Sunday, July 11.

Cooper said, "It's only right to give notice to the 6,000 exhibitors who planned to participate."

"It would be disappointing news, though, for the 1,000 temporary workers, some 200 high school and college workers and 3,000 4-H and FFA (Future Farmers of America) children who count on summer job money and livestock sales," Cooper continued.

Last year 350 to 400 children borrowed money to buy and feed their livestock for sale at the Fair, according to the chairman of the Supervisors. This sale brought in approximately $103,000 for the youngsters.

"The sad economic fact is that livestock which sells for $1 a pound at the Fair could only sell for 45 to 50 cents per pound if the event is cancelled," said Cooper.

"The union sought community support by not disrupting the primary election and it claims the strike is not aimed at the public. What will its justification be if it succeeds in shutting out the public by shutting down the Fair?" Cooper concluded.

Convention of sixty steamed up hobbyists

PLEASANTON — Steam cars may not be the salvation of the motorists' future, but they sure are the big fun of the hobbyist's past, according to C. William Moore of Pleasanton.

Moore is president of an international club of steam engine fans which will hold its annual convention at his house at 1816 Tanglewood Way starting today and concluding Sunday.

Just the fact that one man can have an entire international convention at his house tells you the extent of the hobby: it's pretty selective. Actually, though, the annual conventions are moved all over the United States so for all practical purposes today's get together is really a California convention, with the bulk of the 60 hobbyists expected from northern California, primarily the Bay Area.

There are two wings in the club, the futurists and the nostalgics. The nostalgics will be on hand with a few nice old cars: a 1923 Doble and an 1899 Locomobile among them. The futurists, who are trying to interest Detroit in steam cars might point to Livermore resident Roy Renner's homemade car as an example of what one man can do.

"I have mixed emotions," said Moore. "I like the old engines and the new ones, too."

In their day, the steamers kept up with their gasoline powered rivals, said Moore. And modern steam engines do pretty well against modern gas engines, too, especially when you consider what modern smog controls have done to the gas milage of most modern passenger cars, said Moore. A steam engine, or a gas turbine engine, which also is an "external combustion" engine, could get about the same milage as an internal combustion machine mounted in a mid - sized car, he said.

Without getting into the technical minutiae about the engines, Moore explained that the external combustion engine like steam or gas turbine has its firing outside the power chamber (the piston) instead of inside like most of those iron monsters we drive.

It means that a steam engine powered vehicle can accelerate like a bat out of Fremont because every stroke of the piston is a power stroke. In your current car, every fourth stroke of the piston is a power stroke.

You get not only more power effiecency with a steam engine, you also get a better handle on smog control, said Moore, who has been active in the fight for cleaner air with a public health group.

"It's much easier to control the external fire source," said Moore. "You can control its burning and that's the key to controlling emissions."

Approximately 75 per cent of the electrical machines used to generate electricity in America are steam turbines, said Moore. "It makes the most efficient use of energy possible, even to the point of scooping up all the steam and creating a vacuum behind it," said Moore.

Then why did old steam cars die out?

Probably the main reason steam cars died out was the attachment of the Stanley Brothers to the old way of life — handcrafting each car instead of swinging into mass production like their cross country rival, Henry Ford. Ford produced 1,000 cars a day off his assembly lines: the Stanley Brothers at the their Newton, Mass., factory turned out 1,000 cars a year.

The Stanleys' factory witnessed the only recorded instance of a steam car boiler blowing up, noted Moore. The brothers purposely pumped a boiler over its standard operating pressure and couldn't get it to blow up. Then they loosened the piano wire around the boiler, did a few things to the valve that no one is in his or her right mind or minds would do, and finally got it to explode. It broke every window in the factory and the Stanleys, knowing the boiler's limits and their insurance companiy's toleration, didn't do it again.

The Stanley's car laid to rest one thing which modern skeptics of the steam car always bring up: its speed. The first car to go more than two miles per minute was a modified Stanley Steamer traveling 127 miles per hour at Daytona Beach, Fla., in 1907.

The next year they got it up to 197 mph, but the undercarriage caught in a sand rut, the vehicle flipped over and disintegrated, and further Stanley race specatculars were halted. (The driver got out alive and lived into the 1950's.)

Another great old name in steam engines — Bessler — is expected at the convention today. He took over the old Doble factory in Emeryville with that firm quit manufacturing cars and he continued with production of boilers for steam engines.

Before Bessler retired a few years ago, he built an experimental steam car for General Motors.

Moore is looking forward to the convention and will have a few of his steam engines hooked up and running. He invites the interested public to drop by Saturday between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. when things are will be lively for the conventioneers.

The group will adjourn to Hap's Restaurant Saturday night for the gala convention dinner.

Bicentennial special

Eleven members of the Chabot Valley Campus faculty are shown above taping "The Best of Our Times," an anthology of America historical events surrounding the shaping of the Bill of Rights and subsequent amendments to the Constitution, for broardcasting on July 4. The script, written and directed by campus Dean Dr. Barbara Mertes, will be shown twice on our Bicentennial anniversary, at 12 noon and again at 11 p.m. Representatives from KTVU (channel 2) attended the first of two presentations in May, and decided to telecast the play at that time. It was named KTVU's Bicentennial Special of 1976, and will be broadacast in full color with no commercial interruptions.

Rowell Ranch to be park?

HAYWARD — The Rowell Ranch, a popular rodeo and outdoor performance spot before the Dublin Canyon widening began, may be turned into a regional park.

The East Bay Regional Park District board and staff are talking about buying the property for $741,300, or $175 an acre for the sprawling park. The acreage would be designated a wilderness area and would be kept in "land bank" status for the time being. It would be the second largest in the East Bay Regional Parks system, exceeded only by Anthony Chabot Regional Park.

Lying about midway between Sunol Regional Wilderness and Del Valle Regional Park, the new land boasts wild hill country plateaus and headwaters of four creeks. Wildlife includes mountain lions, ringtail cats and golden eagles.

Most of the ranch is at 2,500 feet. Temperatures fall to 20 degrees in winter and go as high as 110 in summer. Rose Peak, only 32 feet lower than Mt. Diablo at 3,817 feet, is part of the property.

There are only trails and dirt roads on the property and no public access at this time although EBRPD holds an easement permitting entry.

The view from high points sweeps from the high Sierra to San Francisco Bay, the Santa Cruz Mountains, Mt Diablo and Mt. Tamalpais.

Dramatic cascades and waterfalls abound in the springtime. There are many springs on the site and grassland as well as wildflowers, Coulter pine, blue oak, valley oak, black oak, digger pine, manzanita, buckeye and live oak. Some of the trees are extremely old and have grown huge.

Homeowners say follow plan

PLEASANTON — Charlotte Witke, Kay Martin and their neighbors have gathered more than 750 names on their petition to persuade the city council to make what they feel is a minor modification to Chris Beratlis' proposed shopping center.

Witke told The Times yesterday that people have been happy to sign the petition they have had at the entrances to local supermarkets.

Witke, Martin and three other families on Longspur Drive in Pleasanton Valley will back up to Beratlis' five acre neighborhood shopping center. They don't oppose the shopping center, but they would like Beratlis to stick to what they claim was his original intention with the property next to them.

Beratlis allegedly promised last December that the acre or so next to the Longspur backyards would carry some public or institutional type of building. The neighbors prefer that because traffic at such buildings usually ends at 5 p.m. and they could use their backyards comfortably in the evening.

But Beratlis has asked to use that acre as part of the parking lot for the big shopping center. If a supermarket is operating until 10 p.m., it will be an active lot, claims Witke.

The residents didn't know about the change in plans umtil a few days before a planning commission in May. They heard about it on a Friday, got down to city hall on Monday, were shocked to see the parking lot, and trooped to the planning commission on Wednesday.

"We didn't know our rights then," said Witke. "It took us awhile to get organized. This is the only chance we have to change it."

The "chance" to which she referred is the city council meeting June 28. Witke and Martin appealed the planning commission decision and the council is expected to give its verdict then.

Witke and Martin invited three council members to an informational meeting to give their point of view, but two reportedly declined, feeling it legally might make it difficult for them to vote on the item. Frank Brandes was the council member who did attend the meeting.

Beratlis offered to raise the height of the fence between the lot and their property from six to eight feet and to install landscaping in a 10 foot strip all the way along the fence, instead of just partially as first proposed, said Witke.

But its the use of the proposed lot which is important, she said. "It will lower our property values. Neighbors said they would never buy a house with an existing parking lot next to the backyard," said Witke.

Hitchhiker captured in SR, held for kidnap probe

SAN RAMON — An Arkansas hitchiker has been held for investigation of kidnapping a San Luis Obispo man and forcing him to drive to Solano County.

Highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies arrested the suspect Wednesday after he and his alleged victim began struggling on Interstate 680 near San Ramon.

Stanley, Bennett, 28, said he picked up the young man while driving to San Francisco. He said the suspect wanted to go to Suisun City to visit a brother and he told him he would have to get out where Interstate 680 and Highway 101 divided.

But the suspect pulled a knife and ordered him to continue on Interstate 680. Bennett also accused the suspect of robbing him of $14.

The suspect was identified as James B. Harrell, 19, of Little Rock, Ark.

Sunol Glen School

Popular cafeteria head retires

SUNOL — Genevieve Engdahl's long association with school cafeteria food service operations, including 20 years at Sunol Glen, will not come to an end with retirement from her position at the community school here.

Mrs. Engdahl came to Sunol Glen in May of 1955 when Michael Lindemann was superintendent - principal and just 98 youngsters were being served each day.

Upon completion of her duties last week, she had served with a total of four superintendent-principals, including Dr. Pete Corona, Jack Mann and George Bury — and the number of students served per day increased to 155, plus a staff of nine teachers.

But Genevieve's "retirement" will be anything but that as she hopes to teach a class in nutrition at Fremont's Ohlone College next year. The class would be for persons working in institutional cafeterias.

But prior to that, she intends on getting the yard and house she and her husband occupy in Fremont in order, starting by taking a class in how to construct cabinets. Genevieve has a collection of dishes she wants to put in the cabinets.

When she first came to Sunol Glen, the cafeteria - multi purpose room was still on the drawing boards and she cooked in a tiny kitchen in the main building.

Aside from the increase in eager-eaters and building activity, few of the "basics" have changed.

Least of all the children.

Throughout the interview, groups of children and teachers came into the cafeteria with plants and candies to present to one of their most favorite persons.

Genevieve says the state requirements for nutrition are the same but, because of the small school, she has been able to "tailor" some meals to the needs of individuals. Hamburgers are as popular as ever and pizza and tacos have become a hit with kids, too.

She has tried to balance her meals by added small amounts of vegetables with generous portions of fruit. "I usually try to make up their plates so their isn't too much food. The small children don't like to see too much food on their plates — some are finicky. They know they can always come back if they are still hungry."

Turkey and mashed potatos, always a popular dish, was the final menu that Genevieve prepared ... adding cinnamon rolls and fruit salad with watermelon slices.

She has been assisted for the past 5½ years by Mrs. Lorena Mills.

The Engdahl's two children, Honey Engdahl Smith and Erv Engdahl, both attended Sunol Glen.

With the opening of school in the fall, a new face will be behind the lunch counter at Sunol Glen but Genevieve will not be forgotten, especially on those days when the menu calls for turkey and mashed potatoes.

Both Stearns and Burns formerly were administration officials of the Nissan Motor Corporation, and were instrumental in helping the Bermans set up their dealership.

Kamp joins furniture store

LIVERMORE — Russell Kamp, after 11 years with the YMCA, has joined his father, Harold Kamp, in the family business of Kamp's Furniture.

For the past six years, Russ was executive director of the East Valley YMCA in San Jose. He resides there with his wife, Joanne and four children, Laura, David, Heather and Chris.

Russell Kamp

Russ, as manager, will be working in the areas of public relations, "the thing I do best," he said. "We want to be in a closer relation to our customers, through a monthly newsletter perhaps, or just plain pleasure in dealing with people's wants in furnishing their home."

With 11 years of working with people, Russ is well qualified.

He will be commuting from San Jose for possibly a year, while winding up his affairs there. He said it would be no novelty traveling that much as he drove many miles during his tenure with the YMCA.

Kamp's Furniture has been a household word in Livermore since 1904 and has just recently built and moved into a beautiful new store at 2695 First Street. The old store is still in operation at 61 North L and will continue its moving sale for about another month.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Even before being forced from Boston, British Commander-in-Chief General Gage started to look to New York as a new base and began preparations in August, 1775, to move. Howe succeeded Gage the next month and adopted the plan, but Washington's seizure of Dorchester Heights in March 1776, Montgomery and Arnold's Canada Invasion, and the moving of Loyalists out of Boston delayed his schedule. It was not until August, 1776, that Howe was able to land in New York, The World Almanac reveals.

And the band plays on

The Alameda County Fair is a celebration of reassurance during the summers of our discontent. It is the fixed beacon of nostalgia midst the daily rumblings of social, economic and political upheaval.

There is nothing new at the fair. Don't let the promoters tell you different. The rides are the same and so are the side shows. Corn dogs still drip with mustard and those marvelous orange drinks at the race track entrance always froth over the edge of the cup.

The man who guesses your weight within four pounds is still pawning off foot-long stogies and wearing that ridiculous stove-pipe topper.

Everything is as it should be — familiar — with perhaps a new face or two behind the counter of the coin toss booth. Familiarity breeds fondness and this is the lure of the fair. Since last June the cost of living has escalated, Ronald Reagan has become a political force and half the Oakland A's have moved to the east coast. But by George the fair is coming around and we can browse through that same old junk jewelry in The Mexican Village, or nibble on a frozen chocolate covered banana, once again.

Or can we?

It's still not certain if the fair's two-week run can slip unscathed past the Alameda County strike. Pickets may yet bollix up the works.

Certainly fair directors are chagrined at the possibility. And a spokesperson for county strikers called to say they would be equally upset to lose the pageant.

It could cost the County Fair Board hundreds of thousands of dollars. Numerous Pleasanton businesses would suffer.

We the people would be the biggest losers, however. Once a summer the human spirit needs a return to that Never-Never Land where men played softball in bow ties and drank lemonade under the oaks with the ladies.

The brass band's oomp-pa-pah is a memory today, a forgotten sound that echoes in the heavens with the catcalls of Brooklyn baseball fans.

Yet it thumps in the brain the last week of every June when the gates swing open along Bernal Avenue.

For all its dust and grime and commotion, the county fair holds special significance. It is more than nostalgia, it is an effort to embody dreams of things that never were.

We need those dreams.

Round the town

EDINBURGH — You get the idea that visiting this ancient capital of Scotland is going to be something special after boarding "The Overnight" which links Kings Cross Station to the heart of Edinburgh.

We covered the 402 miles in just over six hours. Including one full stop and several stutters. It was like riding BART at its best, only on tracks laid out 50 years ago and in cars built by the Rohr Ancient Carriage Company.

We survived that trip, thank God, for it brought us to one of the most fascinating cities in this busy sweep through the British Isles. I'm not certain how old Edinburgh is, but our hotel porter said his grammar school traces its origins back to 622 ... "But there are others older, I think."

Everyone made much about "The New Edinburgh." It was laid out 200 years ago ... "because we needed more room for commerce and for trade." The "Old Edinburgh" must have been laid out 2000 years ago.

The buildings have that wonderful ugly — beautiful look enjoyed by people and places that have outlived all time, and all distance. The great stone buildings turn first grey, then black, and then mouldy green in a succession of changes that move through the centuries.

Old Edinburgh is located on higher ground, close by Edinburgh Castle. You history students will remember that it was from Edinburgh Castle where Mary Queen of Scots made her great escape, lowering herself down by rope, to avoid the ire of Elizabeth I, think it was.

Anyway, the Castle stands there still, mighty and awesome and frighteningly beautiful against the moody Scottish sky. Today the various Highland Regiments use the Castle as their command post. But another nearby Castle serves as residence for the reigning soverign when she chances to visit Scotland's capital city.

Remnants of a wall that once curled down from the Castle and around the city still remain. Today of course Edinburgh has grown far beyond those narrow confines. Over 700,000 people, we are told. But still retaining much of that which once made most of Scotland a world apart, a land which absorbed its conquerors, a proud people who still look upon the English as invaders.

It is somehow inconsistent with the rough land and the hardy farm people to learn that Edinburgh lays greatest claim to its culture ... the dramatic stage, the centuries - old schools, and of course the world-famous University of Edinburgh.

Here also Robert Louis Stevenson was born, and lived out his life, yielding the writings which live still today. It was a tree nearby a more recent police station where Robert Burns wrote of his wee mousey, and all the rest of his wonderful friends.

And it was in Edinburgh also that Harry Lauder decided that there was more to life than working the coal mines. Lauder reached out for a career on the musical stage ... "an impossible task for one of such lowly beginnings."

His triumph over adversity, and his world acclaim as performer applauded by kings and presidents seem to still serve as a model for these hard-working Scots. It was our great pleasure to be in Edinburgh for one of the first performances of "Lauder," a new musical which tells the life of Sir Harry Lauder in song and poignant story.

Jimmy Logan plays the part in this one-man performance which reminded me a little of James Whitmore's "Give 'Em Hell Harry" ... only with music.

I can remember when our stock of single-side records included Mother's proud collection of Lauder favorites ... "I Love A Lassie" ... "Roamin' In The Gloamin'" ... "When I Get Back To Bonnie Scotland" ... and so many more. Jimmy Logan brought it all back for me, and for a delighted audience of Scots who crowded the Royal Lyceum Theatre for that show.

Again, as with London, we have found the people of these British Isles tell their story best with the performance on stage ... the comedy that makes fun of their own plight, the musical that would laugh their way to better times, or the great tragedy which seems to say that things were always worse, way back when.

It makes you wonder how much better our own story might have been captured, had their been no early impact on those United States by newspapers, by radio and finally by television. We Americans seem so tied to the artificial story, when in reality the truth of our triumph and our emergence would make so much better telling.

We took "The Flying Scotsman" back to London. Same six hours travelling time, but a daytime experience made somewhat less traumatic with the passing scene, the lovely fields and villages rolling by, as our train rolled speedily back to London.

One final thought ... the two-lane highway which often flanked those rail lines is "the major road between Edinburgh and London." Yet we saw very little auto traffic on that road, while the trains connecting those two great cities run almost every hour, and air service is equally frequent.

These Isles are hung up on public transit of one kind or another, and it gives the people and the land a sense of communication that is not possible in our vast American expanses.

Historical rule

Community debate over the recently - settled issue of moving Presbyterian Community Church to Mirador Drive has performed a public service in one area. The issue brought to the public's attention a little - known city ordinance passed in 1973 which gives the city power to create an historical overlay district.

The city council three years ago passed the ordinance with the intention of having a tool to preserve the "Pleasanton Heritage" theme downtown. But the council then failed to appoint the five - member committee which would have designated historical buildings to be preserved. The current council should make up for its predecessors' oversight and appoint that committee now.

The main virtue of the committee is that it would serve as a sort of "advance planning" arm of the city when it comes to historical landmarks and old architecture. With five people to look ahead in these matters, there would be no 11th hour crises when the population suddenly learns that someone wants to tear down an old building. And it would give the city a chance to buy important sites that might otherwise be lost. To appreciate that, just look at the Bank of America parking lot on Main Street and recall it once was the site of the Rose Hotel, where four Presidents slept.

FOCUS/ Unions & fairs

'The bad guys'

It has become increasingly evident in the 70s that unions and agents are shaping the course of our lives.

And in some instances these people place themselves above the law.

With the growth of unions, more of the essentials for daily living are being placed in the hands of individuals or committees who are not necessarily responsive to the welfare of the total community.

One can hardly pickup a newspaper or turn on the radio or television anymore without hearing of some strike or possible strike involving groups of public employees, agricultural workers, teachers — even athletes.

We certainly have no complaint on the burgeoning of unions or the basic reasons for striking. It is the degree of responsibility, however, exercised that is open to question.

And management must be equally responsible and responsive.

Impasses occur when the two sides move stubbornly ahead, ignorant of the needs and wishes of those they represent, determined to make "the other guy" bend.

I wonder if this is not the case in the county employees strike of the past three weeks.

There is some question as to whether all or even most of the county's total number of employees support this strike.

Initially, picketing seemed to be a random affair. While pickets were stationed at some gates of the County Fairgrounds in Pleasanton (and in small numbers), there were none at the construction site of the courts building in Hayward.

After the county employees' strike committee decided to picket (the Fairgrounds) in force, the Fair Association moved to have them removed — via an injunction.

And almost as quickly, it apparently was decided to ignore the court order.

This is nothing new.

Unions have been doing this with increasing frequency the past few years. As witness the situation in San Francisco earlier this year.

Yet we will get calls, such as one yesterday from a person purporting to be a union spokesman, asking if advertisements can be put in the paper explaining "the union side."

"We are not the bad guys," claims the party. "We do not want to see the Alameda County Fair cancelled."

Earlier, it was learned that certain youth groups and their leaders are considering a "protest of the protest" in front of the Fairgrounds. Replete with youngsters leading their farm animals.

All of which is well and good.

Everyone gets to be seen and/or heard.

But the nitty gritty item, as regards the unions and the fairgrounds in this case, is the Alameda County Fair for 1976.

Fair directors were to meet this morning at 10 to consider cancelling the Fair if the pickets and county employees' strike had not been resolved.

It would be a damn shame if that comes to past.

A shame because of those kids and their animals, the hundreds of thousands of county residents who look forward to the fair each year, a shame because hundreds of thousands of dollars will go down the drain ... and because the unions most certainly would come out of it "looking like the bad guys" ... again.

Unforgettable

Editor, The Times:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the people of Pleasanton and the Tri-Valley for all their loving support this past year. I would especially like to thank the Pleasanton Jr. Womens Club for their financial support and concern, my church for the love they have shown to me and their prayers when I have been away, and also my dear friend Hope Noland.

I will always remember my great friends and teachers at Foothill High. They have been so cooperative, understanding and willing to help. Without such a fantastic school to back me up I don't know if I could have made it as far as I did.

This year has been an unforgettable year. It has been a year of hard work and determination to make the U.S. Olympic Team. There have been good times such as my trip to South Africa and winning the San Tam Cup. Then there has been bitter disappointment such as not making the Olympic Team. However, I feel this will be a growing experience for me and will someday lead to success. "The important thing is the battle to get there without losing sight of the beauty of life as it exists from day to day. The ins and outs and ups and downs of living should be enhanced but not overshadowed by that one shining and often illusive goal."

Gymnastics is still such a big part of my life that I do not plan to give it up yet. I will take one year at a time, hopefully keeping myself on the U.S. Team. If I should decide to stay in four more years and try out for the "1980" Olympics Team that would be great! I have had so many great experiences, met so many wonderful people and traveled all over the world, therefore I will never regret the years I have spent in gymnastics. I feel they have helped me to grow as a person and also to broaden my outlook on life.

I want you, the people of this valley, to know how grateful I am to be a part of such a loving community. After all the places I have been in the world I would not trade my home, family and this beautiful community I live in for anything.

With class

Editor, The Times:

I personally wish to congratulate all the Amador graduates of 1976. Your conduct through the school year, at the Senior Ball, at the Baccalaureate and the Commencement was indeed a pleasure to behold. Mr. Laird's comment "from a class with class" covered my sentiments exactly. For the School administration, teachers and graduates "Job Well Done." Your place as an adult in our world will really make it a better place to live in — Please keep up the good record and I wish you all a life time of successes.

Teed off

When Bing Crosby first crooned a fairway fantasy entitled "Straight Down the Middle," he must have envisioned construction of San Ramon National Golf Course.

Hundreds of homeowners there wish golfers could hit 'em like Bing sings 'em — clean and true, but mostly straight.

Homes border almost every one of the 18 holes. There is little buffer between a property owner's master bedroom and an errant seven-iron. Residents have been enduring their own private blitz since the first hacker teed it up.

Last week a couple of them came out of the closet, (or the bomb shelter) and complained publicly about fairway fallout at San Ramon.

A polite little housewife, Saga Sigge, allowed as to how every window in her house had been punched out by wild golf shots. The roof, she said, was absorbing more punishment than the front wall of a handball court. Worse, she said, the clods who shank into her home won't fess up. They run at the first tinkling of shattered glass. The insurance company would rather underwrite Evel Knievel.

Another San Ramon homeowner wrote to say that he too lives in fear of madly hooking Titleists. But he put the bite on golf course management for house repairs. At least that's what the letter said.

Mrs. Sigge, a mild-mannered native of Finland who still thinks golf is meant for grass, not her living room carpet, says she has to see to her own repairs.

It is a lamentable situation for both people, in fact, for all who live along the course. Yet despite the adversity, the two homeowners who complained publicly display remarkable reserve, and a pleasantly civilized approach to problem solving.

Those of us afflicted with a three-piece golf swing are grateful. Most enraged homeowners along San Ramon's course become vigilantes. They are through complaining via proper channels. Instead, their rath is vented on golfers.

And revenge is easily obtained, for no one is as vulnerable as a high handicapper facing a two-iron into the green. The mildest taunt can shatter a man's backswing, make him shiver in his Etonics. A piercing screech can cause heart palpatations.

Were that the vengeance extent of a golfer could purchase ear plugs. But incensed homeowners have been known to turn the tables. The same golf ball that hurtles through the laundry room door often winds up back on the course, zinging past the temple of a besieged duffer.

Angry residents lurk behind the privet and unleash their missles. They remain silent so that the golfer knows not where his antagonist skulks. It's the feeling a lot of British soldiers must have had during the Revolutionary War.

There was one golfer who mistakingly crashed a towering tee shot through a walnut tree at the seventh hole. The ball dropped harmlessly among some teenagers malingering in lounge chairs. Instantly they uncovered an arsenal of lost golf balls and trapped the errant player in a crossfire. At first he ducked and dodged. Then suddenly he realized this ammunition was of better quality than the stuff he was knocking in the bushes. In a flash the golfer tossed barbs and jibes at the venemous youngsters, fueling their rage. A renewed torrent of golf balls rained down. But instead of swerving away, the embattled target gathered them in his arms, doffed his cap and played through, having saved $30 for the purchase of new ones.

It is a game of nerves on the links these days. Golfers feel like John Wayne, marching through the jungle with snipers behind every bush. Homeowners become prison sentinels, on call to trap escaping offenders. They train dogs to attack anything in spikes.

Were it not for a few rational folks, like Mrs. Sigge, the thing could deteriorate into guerrilla warfare.

Let's hope not because most of us have are hands full just trying to make the damn three-wood work.

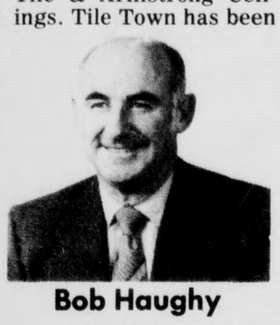
Armstrong Carpets at Tile Town

You all know about Armstrong Linoleum & Tile & Armstrong Ceilings. Tile Town has been reciting this for years. Now Sat. June 19 Bob Haughy,Marketing Representative for Armstrong Carpets, will be at Tile Town to show the complete line of carpets as made by Armstrong.



Bob Haughy

Bob Haughy has a lifetime of experience in retail, wholesale aspects of carpeting, and he will be available for consultation and assistance in helping you with your questions regarding your carpet solution.

Armstrong with only a decade of carpet manufacturing experience is now one of the top 5 carpet manufacturers in the U.S. They have over 70 different qualities and eachline has from 3 to 25 different colors available. Enough colors for the most discriminating to pick from. Armstrong has several kitchen carpets with sponge backing that the do it yourselfer can install. And if you have a mind to you can install their sponge bath shags. It's easy. Of course they have shags, short shags, plushes, embossed shags, plushes, sculptured and just about everything else. Armstrong maintains their own warehouse on the West Coast and availability is only a matter of a couple of days.

Armstrong, a wonderful word in the world of household coverings, teams up with Tile Town, a fantastic combination. Sat., June 19 will be a good day for you to see this team, bring your room sizes with you for some really fantastic savings.

Hardwood Floor Expert Charles Smith to be at Tile Town Saturday

Thinking of hardwood flooring? Sat., June 19 is a good day to talk to an expert. Charles Smith, with over 35 years in hardwood sales, manufacturing and installation, is the man to talk hardwood with.

The resurgence of the popularity of hardwood floors has been greatly increased by several factors. One being it takes 3 or 4 days to install a floor. Two. Anyone can do it. It's easy - do it yourself and save. Most all hardwood floors now come prefinished with a baked in penetrating finish that is better than can be done on location. Designs and patterns are available that today can't be matched on location. There just aren't enough craftsmen available and then too, the cost would be prohibitive.

Oak is still the most popular for wood flooring, with teak following. At Tile Town you can find these two with cherry, maple, and Walnut parquet floors. These that come from 6''x6'' squares to 18''x18'', the most popular being the 12''x12'' which cover a square foot, are easy to install, with mastic on wood or concrete sub floors. Random plank or strip flooring, again easy to install, with nailers that anyone can use. These plank floors can be installed on wood or concrete. Some are available with pegs and even hand wrought nails that are functional as well as decorative. Sat. is your day to be at Tile Town.

Tredway Demonstration

Armstrong's newest entry in the vinyl field is 'Tredway', a cushioned vinyl linoleum that you have to see to believe. 'Tredway' can be installed by any do it yourselfer on just about any surface, from concrete to hardwood floors. In fact, if your subfloor is not in good condition, 'Treway' spans minor cracks and imperfections that other vinyl floors would require filling and sanding. 'Tredway' is available in several patterns & each has several colors to pick from.

Mike Wells and John Sher, Armstrong Representatives, will be at Tile Town Sat., June 19 with films & samples - also rolls in stock for immediate delivery. Let John and Mike show you how to staple this floor down without messy paste; unbelievable! DIY movies from 10:00, 3:00.

Armstrong to show Ceilings Saturday

Mike Prisk

Mike Prisk will be at Tile Town on Sat., June 19 to demonstrate Armstrong Ceilings. If you are thinking of redoing a ceiling, whether it be a bathroom, a bedroom, or a ballroom, come in Saturday and let Mike answer your questions.

Armstrong Ceilings come in many, many patterns; like Constitution, a 1776 pattern with a 1976 flair; or the new trendsetter, Plank, available in antique white & light walnut. This is one pattern that can be installed crossway, lengthway, or even the new approach and that is diagonal - different. Then you can try the 'Gourmet' pattern in the kitchen if you are daring. The accoustical group of patterns when installed are like putting carpet on the ceiling - quiet. Armstrong also has vinyl coated tiles for easy washing even is you cook with gas - though all of Armstrong Ceilings are washable. Suspended ceilings Armstrong excells in, from the standard 2x4 panels with metal gridwork to the new integrid-system, where only the ceiling surface shows; no metal can be seen. Also the Chandelier group of tiles without the bevel edge that your ceilings is unmarred with lines. Saturday is the day to be at Tile Town and have Mike show you how to do it yourself and save. Armstrong, number one in ceilings and Tile Town; a good combination.

Wallpaper with Warren Lyman

Warren Lyman will be at Tile Town Saturday, June 19 and will demonstrate how to hang wallpaper at 10:30 a.m. and at 2:00. This is your chance to see an expert and to ask questions. Warren has had many years experience selling and demonstrating wallpaper secrets in seminars. Mr. Lyman is associated with the Allmorse Co. who distribute the Wall-tex line of wallpapers made by the Borden Co. AD resigns— blasts no one

On Sports

Two years as "interim" athletic director at Foothill High School were enough for Dan Chiolis.

The job gobbled up so much of his time he got the impression that his family might have difficulty recognizing him from one day to the next.

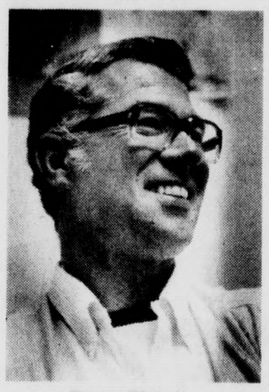
Thus, the popular Chiolis ended a nine-year involvement with athletics in the Amador Valley Joint Union High School District.

Athletic directors in the district get no additional time off from teaching, nor did Foothill have seperate AD's for boys and girls sports.

"Before I took the job, I though I could do it," he said. "But you really need two, although I don't know how you could pay them."

The incomplete nature of a three-year old school did little to make the job easier.

"I don't even have a phone in my office," he pointed out. "I knew we'd have growing pains, but I didn't think they'd last as long as they have."



Dan Chiolis

But Chiolis, who brought a seasoned attitude to the tenderfoot school, had few other complaints.

"It was a good experience," he said. "I think I've done a little good — I liked working with the staff.

"I tried to give the younger guys the benefit of my experience since we have such a young staff," he added. "But, I suppose the students thought I was an old man."

Foothill's role as the neglected cousin of the East Bay Athletic League is one point Chiolis tried to change.

"We haven't had very good publicity because the younger coaches don't want to call in the scores when they're going 0-12," he said. Financial matters were something else Chilois believes coaches must take more time for.

"I tried to involve the coaches in the budget," he related "It's easy to give a guy $500 and say, 'do what you can.'

"Either the coaches have got to help out more or the athletic director has to have more time."

Before coming to Foothill, Chiolis spent six years as soccer coach at Dublin. His resignation from that post sparked perhaps the most controversial moment of Chiolis easy-going career.

"The community was so involved in club soccer that they didn't support the high school team," he recalled. "So at the awards dinner I said I couldn't win in that situation.

As soon as I said it, I saw a reporter jump out of his seat and bolt for the door — I thought, uh-oh!" he laughed. "Sure enough, the next day his paper (not the Times) had a headline saying, 'Coach quits — blasts community.' There wasn't any mention of the fact that I had thanked everyone who had supported us."

Typically, Chiolis saw the humor of the situation: "I was hoping he'd shoot a picture of Dave Anderson (later an All-American at Chabot College), but he took a shot at me instead."

Despite the incident, which tended to give him a gung-ho image, Chiolis has little respect for the win at all costs attitude that often dominates coaches thinking.

"I like to win," he said. "But I don't like to destroy people. You can be a gentleman and be a winner, you don't have to be some kind of a gorilla."

Although he agrees that many little league coaches are a positive influence, Chiolis blames overly-organized kids sports for many of the problems that have developed in high school sports over the years.

"Through junior high school and high school sports should be low key, although you'd still try to win, of course," he proposed. "You could start bearing down on them at the junior college or college level. "People forget that high school sports are supposed to be educational, he continued. "With all that pressure on them, the kids get tired of playing so many sports for so long."

In line with this, Chiolis sees the need for a slight de-emphasis of interscholastic programs.

"I don't think everyone should play a varsity sport," he said "The truly gifted athletes should have the opportunity, but we've got kids on our teams right now who'd be better off concentrating on their studies."

But the other side of the coin is also visible.

"If we didn't have sports, some kids wouldn't make it scholastically " he added. "I'd hate to see school exist only for academics."

The addition of girls sports on the high school level, recently made mandatory by the now-famous Title IX, may make such cuts necessary. Still, Chiolis views the girls program as a plus.

"When I was at Dublin we had all sorts of trouble with the freshman girls," he recalled. "One of the things we heard most often was, 'if your're not a cheerleader and your not pretty, there's nothing to do at school.'"

He added that a stronger intramural program — recently begun at Foothill with an evening basketball league — will be needed in the years to come.

And in the long run the amount of financial support that the community is willing to provide schools will dictate the size and quality of high school athletic programs.

Says Chiolis, "Money's going to do it to us."

Don rally beats Fremont

The Pleasanton Dons faltered at the end of the second quarter but rallied to defeat the Fremont Warriors Warriors, 58-49, in an exhibition summer basketball game last night at the Amador Valley High School gym.

Proceeds from the attendance of perhaps three dozen persons will benefit Pleasanton Recreation Department - Allied Brokers Basketball summer basketball league.

It was the second game in two days for the Dons, who also play in a San Leandro league, and coach Tony Costello saw improvement in his club.

"The defense was a lot better. We blocked off the middle," he exclaimed. "Last night you could have driven a truck through there. Tonight we got some help from the weak side."

Costello also believed that the Dons excepted better on offense and praised subs Ken Noble and Rick Maynard.

After jumping to a 19-8 lead after 10 minutes Pleasanton staggered and the Warriors were quick to take advantage. Forward Jeff Wood picked up eight points in the final four minutes of the half on a trio of jump shots and a drive down the lane as Fremont earned a 22-22 halftime tie.

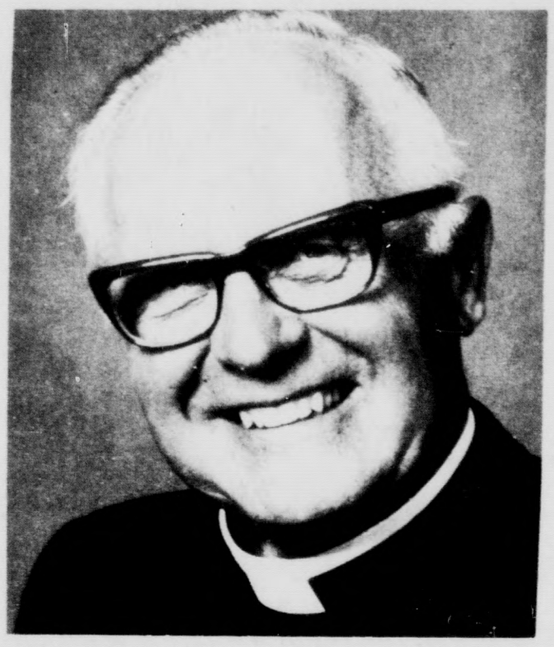
The Rev. M.C. Johnson celebrates anniversary



LIVERMORE— The Rev. Milton C. Johnson, pastor of Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Livermore will be preaching the sermon for his family worship service as usual at 9 a.m. this Sunday.

It's fitting that his sermon will be "Time for a Rerun!" because that's what his congregation hopes for — many reruns! Their pastor will be celebrating his 35th Anniversary as an ordained minister and they plan an Anniversary Brunch after the 9 a.m. and only service planned for this special Sunday. Members and friends are invited to honor Pastor Johnson and thank him for his many years of dedicated service to the Lord.

Milton C. Johnson, one of five children of Danish parents, is the first member of the church of his childhood, St. Mary's Lutheran Church in Kenosha, Wisconsin, to have entered the ordained ministry St. Mary's is an independant Lutheran congregation of Danish tradition named after St. Mary's Cathedral in Copenhagen.

He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and from Northwestern Lutheran Seminary. He and his wife, Ruth, parents of four children, weren't married until he finished Seminary ("Seminary students had to remain single in those days.").

His first call was as an Assistant Pastor at First English Lutheran Church, Mansfield, Ohio, in June of 1941. Pastorates followed in Beaver Dam, Wisc., Colorado Springs, Colo., and Los Altos, Calif.

By the time he came to Los Altos in 1956 his administrative abilities and organizational talents led to his being asked to be the assistant director of stewardship under the Division of Parish Services for the national church from 1963 to 1966.

At that time he was responsible for all the congregations of the LCA west of the rockies from New Mexico to Alaska.

He accepted another pastorate in Arizona before finally coming to the Livermore church. He has been at Holy Cross since 1968.

Wherever "Milt," as he is affectionately called by his congregation, has gone, he has been responsible for which ever church he has led to prosper, expand and thrive — healing wounds in some and preventing splits in others.

He has continued to be active in church stewardhsip efforts, serving on the board of the Division for Parish Services of the LCA and as Stewardship Co-ordinator of the Pacific Southwest of the Old Seminary District and now in the new North Coast District. He has been a Convocator of California Lutheran College almost since its founding.

Christian Supper Club a success

In the vein of the Christian Night Club, which has been offered locally at Howard Johnson's in Dublin and the Holiday Inn in Livermore, we now have the "Christian Supper Club," sponsored by the Neighborhood Church of Castro Valley through its ministry of Neighborhood Singles.

Following the same format of good entertainment without the serving of alcoholic beverages, they have found success in offering a dinner in elegant surroundings and are presenting their sixth consecutive effort June 25 at 8 p.m. at the Top O' The Inn located on the 14th floor of the Holiday Inn on the Emeryville Marina.

For June's presentation, the Supper Club will feature the musical artistry of SHALOM, an exceptionally fine group of young musicians whose contemporary gospel sound is refreshing and inspirational.

Advance tickets are a must because no tickets will be available at the door. They are available at $11 per person, which includes the cost of the dinner and entertainment, by writing to the Christian Supper Club, 2568 Castro Valley Blvd., Castro Valley, Ca. 94546. For more information call 886-3139.

Adventist to hear

LIVERMORE— Chaplain Robert Mole of the Veteran's Administration Hospital, Martinez, will be the guest speaker for the 11 a.m. service on Saturday at the Livermore Seventh-day Adventist Church, 243 Scott St. Chaplain Mole has been with the U.S. Navy services for the past 23 years.

Lesson study this Saturday, starting at 9:30 is "God Speaks; I Respond." Some of the topic highlights are "Hearing is Believing; Hearing and Doing." Friends are invited to come and participate.

This Saturday the Livermore Church will take up an offering from its members to provide literature for the church's servicemen and women.

Chaplain Mole says, "Adventists have traditionally registered as noncombatants when they were drafted — they were willing to serve in anyway except in carrying weapons," says Chaplain Mole. "In this way many have distinguished themsleves as medics — including one Desmond Doss, who received the Congressional Medal of Honor from President Truman for bravery during World War II."

"But," continues Mole, "Adventists who join the services voluntarily are not automatically entitled to many privileges of draftees — like time to observe the seventh-day Sabbath. And yet there are presently 4,000 young Adventist men and women in the military. We think the recession and tight job market, along with increased pay and status of the volunteer Army are causative factors."
